TCI Software and IBM Renew Partnership

ABERDEEN, N.C. — March 8, 2019 — TCI Software, Inc. announced today the company has renewed its GlobalPartner program membership with IBM.

"We have been an IBM GlobalPartner® since 2016," says Tim Maroney, TCI president and CEO. "We updated our participation as a result of recent changes in nomenclature and structure within IBM's data science organization."

"In addition to revenue-sharing opportunities, the IBM GlobalPartner program gives TCI an additional data repository that will provide the supplemental storage capacity to support TCI's growth and future use of IBM's artificial intelligence capabilities," Maroney added.

Last month IBM split its data science product group into two new entities under its Watson Health banner. The company's well-known Data Science and Business Analytics organization (DSBA) has been renamed Data Science and AI (DSAI).

"It makes great sense to bring Watson AI into our Data Science partner ecosystem and combine our messaging," says Craig Wacaser, channel partner executive for IBM North America. "No other provider comes close to the depth and breadth of our Data Science and AI portfolio."
